Physical Requirements and Work Environment

Wildlife hospitals are often fast-paced, intense, and an emotional environment for staff, volunteers, and members of the public. The ideal candidate will be able to:

- Stand, stoop, twist, walk, and lift large and potentially heavy kennels and other objects up to 25 pounds without support, and 50 pounds with support
- Capture, handle, and restrain sick, injured, and orphaned wild animals with the understanding that exposure to zoonosis, bites, scratches, and other potential injury is possible
- Prepare for exposure to allergens that are normally present in an environment containing animals and wildlife

- Demonstrate understanding that Think Wild is a drug-free, smoke-free environment

Learning Outcomes

Throughout the duration of the internship, the intern will:

- Gain knowledge and experience in operating a wildlife hotline
- Gain important interpersonal communication and problem solving skills
- Experience the fulfillment of directly impacting the lives of injured and orphaned wildlife
- Learn the process of wildlife rescue, rehabilitation, and release
- Gain a unique experience working with wildlife and the people impacting their conservation
- Work in an environment that encourages learning and skill development
- Network and become familiar with the field of wildlife conservation
- Completion of an internship project delegated to you by the Director of Wildlife Rehabilitation

EEO Policy

It is the policy of Think Wild to afford equal internship opportunities to all qualified individuals without regard to their race, color, ancestry, religion, sex, sexual orientation, national origin, age, physical or mental disability, citizen status, veteran status, gender identity, gender expression, or any other characteristic or status that is protected by federal, state, or local law.

Compensation

- Up to $1000 stipend upon successful completion of the internship
- Uniform (Think Wild t-shirt)
